IT'S TELLER OR BRYAN

One of the Big Guns Will Be Fired Off Here.

WON'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER

East Liverpool Silver Men Are Determined to Have at Least One Good Meeting—It Will Be Made the Event of the Silver Campaign.

Weary with seeing the disaffection in their ranks and knowing that nothing but the influence of the loudest sounding guns in the party will save them from any thing but the slimiest kind of a showing at the polls, local leaders of Democracy have determined to have Senator Teller or William J. Bryan appear here during the campaign.

It will be a star engagement, and only a one night stand. There will be a parade if a sufficient number can be found to march, and the county will be well advertised for miles around. Every effort will be made to drum up a big crowd, and there are those who say the big attraction will come for the street fair. Of course the silver men want Bryan. He is the silver plated god they would look upon. They are anxious to hear from his own lips the speech he loves so dearly to make, and every influence that can be brought to bear upon him will be worked for all it is worth. Should it so happen that he will not come, and there are people mean enough to think that he is after larger game than the few votes he will find in East Liverpool, the Pops will put up with Mr. Teller. He will answer their purpose they believe, and they will listen to what he will have to say. The date of the meeting has not been determined, but will likely be some time in October. Bryan's time when next he comes to Ohio is well taken up, and it is not thought he will stop here while touring the state after his visit to the east. The arrangements for the meeting depend largely on the coming of Teller or Bryan, and even now the interested ones are anxiously scanning every iota of intelligence relating to the candidate in the hope of learning when he will be here. Meantime it would be well for business men to keep an eye on the movement. They can not afford to be drawn into a matter of this kind, neither do they desire to transform a gathering for business purposes into a big political meeting, particularly when they pay the bill. If Bryan or some other silver talker should be brought here during the fair all the advertising expenses of a big meeting would be saved, and he would have a greater crowd than they could ever hope for him on any other occasion.

CONVINCING THE SKEPTICS.

A Lady Doing Missionary Work For Honest Money.

A well known professional man of the city was recently handed the following by a lady who hoped the words would make him an honest money man:

"If a dollar be a dollar,
Honest coin, without deceit,
One may melt it,
One may smelt it,
But its value won't retreat.
Melt ten dollars,
Silver dollars,
In unbiased melting pot,
And the silver slug resulting
Only sells for five the lot.
Melt gold dollars,
Melt an eagle,
In aforesaid melting pot,
And the golden slug resulting
Quickly sells for ten the lot.
Will you tell me, gently tell me,
How these dollars equal are,
If a little glowing furnace
Puts on only one a scar?
There was never yet equation
That demanded legislation
To establish right to be,
An equation is equation,
Else it is a fallacy.
And I'm thinking,
Quietly thinking,
That a man has poor sense,
If he vote to have a dollar
That will melt to fifty cents."

SCARED THE DEMOCRAT.

He Was a Bryan Man but Would Not Back His Opinion.

Among the most prominent business men of the city is an enthusiastic Republican. The other day he was in Canton looking after some business affairs, and chanced to ride on the platform of a street car. Now politics make up the only question heard in Canton these days. Whenever a few men meet they talk politics, and it happened that other men were on that platform. One was a Democrat, and for several blocks boasted in a loud voice of the great things Bryan would do when he was president. The man became particularly offensive in his reference to Major McKinley, and the blood of the East Liverpool visitor began to boil. At length he could endure it no longer, and putting his hand into his pocket he quietly offered to bet the silvermen $1000 that McKinley would be the next president. As he had taken no part in the discussion and looks anything but a sport, the offer attracted general attention. The Bryan man stammered and stuttered a little, and was then compelled to back down completely while the unostentatious stranger improved the opportunity of giving him a few words he will not soon forget. After a time he could endure the burning words no longer, and rushed from the car while the crowd smiled and the Liverpool man was glad.

DISCOUNTING OUR COIN.

Canadian Merchants Are Afraid of Our Money.

J. C. Kelly and W. F. Steele returned yesterday from Niagara Falls, and while there learned a lesson in finance. They were about to start for the Canadian side when a friend, an officer of a bank in Buffalo, advised them to have what money they expected to use changed into Canadian coin. He explained that the Canadians were discounting American money, and would not take a dollar for anything like its face value. He also told them the history of several New York drafts his bank had sent a Canadian correspondent. The paper was discounted, an unheard of proceeding, nor would the banker on the other side take it for its face value. Canada is afraid of American money.

WILL HAVE A CANNON.

Republicans Will Make a Lot of Noise in Canton.

The McKinley club met at their rooms on Fifth street last night with a large attendance. Arrangements for the Canton trip was the only business to be transacted, and the club went to work at once. A chief marshal was selected and T. O. Timmons was appointed a committee to see the Grand Army, and if possible borrow the small cannon to help furnish noise during the day. The appointment of two color bearers was left in the hands of the chief marshal, while the aides will be appointed by the president. Communications from McKinley clubs in Wellsville, Irondale, Salineville and a number of other towns were read, and showed they would turn out in large numbers. Twenty-six new members were added to the club, and 1,000 badges were ordered. The address will be made by W. V. Blake.

HARD TIMES HURT.

E. J. Owens Said So in His Report to the Sons of St. George.

Among the principal events in the state meeting of the Sons of St. George at Toledo was the report of E. J. Owens, the retiring president. He showed that the hard times had some effect on the order during the fiscal year, but not so marked as upon other beneficial organizations, as shown by their statistics. Several new lodges were organized, and but two succumbed to the hard times. There are now 37 subordinate lodges under the jurisdiction of the grand lodge. Recommendations of the president were mostly upon plans for the further development of the order, and for greater efficiency along its line of work.

The meeting adjourned last evening. Among the state officers retaining position through a former election is Trustee William Barlow, of this city.

WANT A STATION.

East End People Think They Should be Recognized.

East End has been more indignant than it is at present, but not often. Someone has again commenced the agitation in favor of a station, and as the facts are made plain business men become more angry. They see winter approaching. The roads to the city will become almost impassable. Merchants will have great difficulty in having merchandise brought to their stores. They want the company to give them an agent, a depot, and the right to have their goods shipped to East End. Business men will take the matter to the highest officials in the hope of being recognized.

TAYLOR IS THERE.

The Holiness Preacher Has Come to Hollow Rock.

Rev. B. S. Taylor arrived at Hollow Rock yesterday afternoon, and the campmeeting was started. He will remain during the entire meeting, and will conduct the services. He will be remembered as having won the title of Holiness Taylor while in this city, and his highly colored and sensational sermons will be readily recalled by those who heard him talk. His home is now in Des Moines, Ia. A number of local people are at Hollow Rock, and more will go there tomorrow for the purpose of spending Sunday.

ON HIS FEET AGAIN

Mr. Porter's Embarrassment Is Only Temporary.

BUSINESS MEN HIGHLY INDIGNANT

They Score a Local Sheet—The Store in Charge of Attorney Brookes, Who Is Conducting the Business—The Liabilities Are Not Large.

The financial embarrassment of Henry E. Porter is only a temporary matter, and it will not be long until he is again in possession of his business.

That the gentleman has been experiencing some difficulty has long been known, but it was generally believed he would weather the storm, and not be compelled to make an assignment. The claims against him amount to only $5,400, and it is believed that these will soon be paid, or some settlement made whereby the gentleman can again take up his business. Attorney J. H. Brookes is now in charge for the creditors, and is rapidly finding the condition of affairs. The creditors are the Pittsburgh Dry Goods company, and Arbutnot, Stevenson & Co. The story that Mr. Porter placed the store in their hands to prevent the collection of delinquent taxes is pronounced a falsehood without the slightest foundation.

Much indignation was expressed on every hand when the sensational announcement was made in a local paper last night. The real condition was known, and business men were hoping the matter would not appear in print. They not only wanted to save the effect of the publication on Mr. Porter, who is straining every nerve to get his affairs in order, but knew it would injure their own credit. The NEWS REVIEW was in possession of the facts last week, but at the earnest request of several leading business men refrained from making them public. The local sheet is being universally condemned for the action as mean and contemptible since Mr. Porter was ever one of its most liberal advertisers. The expression of sympathy for Mr. Porter is general, and if his many friends could settle his affairs it would not be long until the People's store was again in his hands.

THE MADDEST MAN IN TOWN.

He Got an Anonymous Letter From Wellsville.

The maddest man in town received an anonymous letter from Wellsville last night, and if it had gone through the mails he would have reported it to the postal authorities. The letter was well written by someone who is well educated, and is an awful arraignment of the gentleman's only daughter. She is an exemplary young lady without the faintest spot on her character, but the letter places her among the vilest and details scenes of the most degrading character. It is dated in Wellsville, and was slipped under the door at the gentleman's residence. He declares he will employ a private detective, hunt down the writer, and kill him on sight.

ENJOYING A STORY.

It Was Written by a Lady Well Known in This City.

A number of persons in the city have enjoyed to a great extent "A Judicial Error," a story in one of the leading magazines, and will be delighted to learn that it was written by a lady well known to some people in the city. Marion Manville Pope, the writer, is the wife of Mr. Pope, the brother of J. V. and G. R. Pope, the well known engravers of the city. The lady is a resident of Trenton, and has contributed to the magazines for several years. She possesses the rare trait of telling an intensely interesting story in a remarkably pleasant manner, and in none of her productions is the fact brought more prominently before the reader than it is in her "Error."

TWO BIG CRANES

Were Shot by a Camping Party on Line Island.

The Pittsburgh parties who are in camp on the river shore near the Pennsylvania boundary, have in their possession a pair of unusually large cranes. They were shot on Line island yesterday, and are beautiful specimens. Hunters say that more cranes have been seen in this place during the past few months than have been known for many years. They are unusually shy, and it is a good shot who can bring them down. The pair referred to are on exhibition in a Second street business house.

HE DROVE SIXTY MILES

To Attend a Holiness Campmeeting in Pennsylvania.

The people who have been conducting a campmeeting at Five Points that was largely attended by people from this city have pulled up stakes and moved to a point in Westmoreland county, Pa. They succeeded in rousing the people to a high pitch, and the excitement was intense when it was learned they were about to move. One farm hand was almost wild when he heard it, and wept bitterly. Another man was determined to hear more from the evangelists, and drove from near Dry Run to the new camp, a distance of 60 miles.

A SALTY DOSE.

Moses Swindells and Mrs. Rutledge Get Their Dues.

Lisbon, Aug. 21.—[Special]—Moses Swindells and Mrs. Rutledge were taken before Judge Young this morning, and decided they were guilty of the charges to which they pleaded not guilty in East Liverpool. The judge fined each of the culprits $75 and costs, and ordered them to jail until the money was paid. As neither happened to have the price of freedom in their inside pocket they were returned to jail, and will remain in charge of Sheriff Gill until some kind friend sends over the money.

THE BOATS.

What Is Happening Along the River Front.

The Virginia is due up for Pittsburgh today, and the Bedford will be down at 9 o'clock this evening.

If there is ample water for packets next month the Hudson will again resume her trips between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. The boat was used for excursion purposes during the warm season.

There are a large number of packages of ware lying at the wharfbout in readiness to be shipped.

The household goods of Mrs. S. E. McBride arrived here on the Bedford yesterday from Matamoras.

KEENE MAY COME.

Manager Norris Wants Him to Open the Grand.

Manager Norris is endeavoring to secure Charles B. Hanford or Thomas W. Keene for the opening attraction at the Grand. If neither of these gentlemen can be secured the house will open with a repertoire company. Sam T. Jack's Croole company were booked for street fair evening, but cancelled this morning, giving as their reason that there was no money in one night stands until after the election. The majority of letters received by the manager are of the same character.

IN HARD LUCK.

Will Peake is the Victim of Adverse Circumstances.

Will Peake, who has a hole in his hand because of the accidental discharge of a revolver, is not superstitious but believes he is the victim of circumstances. A month ago he was about to accept a well paying position when he broke a finger, and was compelled to give it up. When the break was repaired he again sought to fill the position, and had all arrangements made when the revolver ended his plans.

A DEAD DOG.

William Heldman Accidentally Killed His Pet.

A collie dog valued highly by its owner, William Heldman, met death on Broadway this morning. Heldman was driving his wagon down the hill, and the animal trotted peacefully behind. A number of other dogs attacked it, and to escape them it ran under the wagon and into another danger. The wheels passed over it, and the dog soon died.

INCURABLE.

Newburg Authorities Refuse an Insane Man.

Lisbon, Aug. 21.—[Special]—The county authorities have been notified by the superintendent of the Newburg asylum that they cannot receive Jesse E. Arnold, an insane resident of Fairfield township. He is considered incurable. Annie T. Cope, of Leetonia, was adjudged insane today, and will be sent to the Newburg institution.

GONE HOME.

Jolly Fellows Have a Good Time on Line Island.

The Jolly Fellows Outing club, who have been camping near Line island during the past three weeks, broke camp this morning and returned to Pittsburgh on the noon train. There were 15 members in the party, and they spoke in highest terms of the treatment received from people living in this vicinity.

Expensive Lodging.

The jail is empty again. William Duffy, the most recent occupant of that noted institution, was released from confinement last evening. It cost him $5.90 for the privilege of using the pavements of Second street as a bed.

MORE ELECTRIC LINES

Work Will Begin on the Rock Spring Road Monday.

SELECTING A ROUTE TO LISBON

Engineers Drove Over the Wellsville Road This Week—Believed to Be a Branch of That Pittsburg System—Bridge Company in Earnest.

The bridge company will start the construction of its electric line next Monday, and if the free silver people do not scare capital into seclusion the county may have still another road.

All the material necessary for the construction of an electric line from this city to Rock Spring has been ordered, and much of it is now on its way to the city. It includes all rails and other iron necessary for the construction of the road, and was purchased some time ago.

A force of men will begin the work of grading next Monday morning, and no time will be lost. A large number will be employed, and the line surveyed through the company's property a few weeks ago will be followed. No franchise in this city has yet been asked, but President McDonald will request council to give the right of way as soon as the engineers decide on one of several routes now being considered. The company will build its own power house, and no traffic arrangement has yet been made with the East Liverpool & Wellsville company. The road will be completed by Oct. 15.

Parties residing on the Wellsville-Lisbon road are responsible for the statement that the electric line to Lisbon is not as dead as circumstances would make one believe. Four well dressed men drove over the line from Wellsville one day this week, and were heard to discuss the various points of vantage while one did a vast deal of writing in a small book. It is believed the men are interested in the proposed extensions of the big Pittsburg corporation, and the road will be built. One man was heard to say: "If these silver people don't kill business we're all right."

NO SILVER MEN THERE.

Veterans Cheered the Presiding Elder When He Talked McKinley.

John Rinehart attended the reunion of the Fifty-second Ohio Volunteer infantry at Smithfield, and was one of 1,500 who cheered until they were hoarse when Doctor Stewart, presiding elder of this district of the Methodist Episcopal church, referred to Major McKinley. Mr. Rinehart knows hundreds of people in Jefferson county, and among the great number present was unable to find a silver man although he searched diligently.

OLD HABITS.

showed Prominently in an Ancient Race Horse.

A clothing man and a young medical student attended the Hookstown fair yesterday. The animal they drove was an old track horse, and as soon as its feet struck the track it started at breakneck speed with the two gentlemen doing their level best to stop it. The crowd was much pleased with the impromptu sport, and it is said the time was remarkably fast.

SURPRISED MRS. ANDERSON.

A Pleasant Party in Huston Addition Last Night.

A number of friends of Mrs. Thomas Anderson called on the lady in a body last evening at her home in Huston addition. She was very much surprised, but gave the guests possession of the house, and a very pleasant evening was spent in music and games.

A number of young people from the city will attend a dance at Ohioville this evening.

A FOOT RACE.

Ended in a Painful Cut For Ernest Orr.

Last evening as the young people were returning from a party in Huston addition a foot race was proposed, and they started down the hillside. Ernest Orr tripped in some manner and fell, striking a sharp stone with his hand. A cut several inches long was the result, and a physician sewed it up. He will have a sore hand for a week or two.

WILL NOT OPEN MONDAY.

Books For the New Library Did Not Arrive in Time.

The new library will not open Monday as was intended, for the reason that the books did not arrive when they were expected. Secretary Danberg has been out of the city for a few days, and would have been unable to list the books even if they had come on schedule time.

MR. BRYAN is a rampant free trader, and in this enterprising community free traders need not apply for consideration.

MR. BRYAN has degenerated into a circus. He never fails to draw the crowd, but they go away telling each other it is the same old thing.

We have already had one free soup house in East Liverpool because of Democratic free trade, and we don't want another because of Democratic free silver.

The Democratic managers might as well waste their time talking to the stars as attempt to convince the world that all their speakers are fighting for free silver without pay.

The Democratic administration has already cost this government $203,000,000, and to place the affairs of state in the hands of that crowd again would mean as much and probably more of a deficit.

A DANGEROUS MAN.

It is safe to believe that a child once burned will forever afterward dread the fire, and men are but developed children. The cause of the hard times is well known. The paid emissaries of wealthy silver kings can talk until their tongues, teeth and pallets are completely worn out, and yet be unable to convince the world that Grover Cleveland and his administration are not responsible. Candidate Bryan is a free trader. A few years ago he talked nothing but free trade. That is all he apparently knew, and he drummed it incessantly into the ears of his constituents. He told men for months the only thing they needed to make them all prosperous was free trade. Since then Mr. Bryan has experienced a change of subject, but not of sentiment. Now he is telling the country that happiness can only be found in free silver. According to his drawn out arguments it is the cure for all their ills, but at heart he is still a free trader. Down deep in his thoughts, hidden from view by silver, lies the same old love for what well nigh proved our ruin. He knows that the school of experience has done its work well, and he does not talk free trade nor in any but a casual manner refer to the tariff. But place him in power. Set him in the high seat he so longs to occupy. Then watch Mr. Bryan's attitude on the tariff. He will use all his influence to keep wool on the free list, cut the tariff on pottery to even a lower point, and will spare no force to place this country on a free trade basis. Mr. Bryan is a silver man, but Mr. Bryan is also a free trader, and therefore a dangerous man to place in public office.

FAVORS MEDIATION.

Chief Justice Russell Prefers It to Arbitration.

MADE AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS.

The Lord Chief Justice of England Spoke to the American Bar Association—Cheered For Fifteen Minutes by the Vast Audience—What He Said.

SARATOGA, Aug. 21.—The address to the American Bar association on "International Law" by Lord Russell, lord chief justice of England was an eloquent discourse and at its close the vast audience cheered the speaker for fully 15 minutes and then many rushed to the stage, congratulated him and shook him by the hand. Resolutions, coinciding with his views, were adopted.

Lord Russell in his address, briefly considered what is international law; its sources; the standard—the ethical standard—to which it ought to conform; the characteristics of its modern tendencies and development, and then added some needful words on the question, lately so much discussed, of international arbitration. He said:

It behooves all who are friends of peace and advocates of arbitration to recognize the difficulties of the question, to examine and meet these difficulties and to discriminate between the cases in which friendly arbitration is, and in which it may not be, practically possible.

Pursuing this line of thought, the shortcomings of international law reveal themselves to us and demonstrate the grave difficulties of the position.

The analogy between arbitration as to matters in difference between individuals, and to matters in difference between nations, carries us but a short way.

In private litigation the agreement to refer is either enforceable as a rule of court, or, where this is not so, the award gives to the successful litigant a substantive cause of action. In either case there is behind the arbitrator the power of the judge to decree, and the power of the executive to compel compliance with, the best of the arbitrator. There exist elaborate rules of court and provisions of the legislature governing the practice of arbitrations. In fine, such arbitration is a mode of litigation by consent, governed by law, starting from familiar rules, and carrying the full sanction of judicial decision. International arbitration has none of these characteristics. It is a cardinal principle of the law of nations that each sovereign power, however politically weak, is internationally equal to any other political power, however politically strong. There are no rules of international law relating to arbitration, and of the law itself there is no authoritative exponent nor any recognized authority for its enforcement.

But there are differences to which, even as between individuals, arbitration is inapplicable—subjects which find their counterpart in the affairs of nations. I do not arbitrate where character is at stake, nor, will any self-respecting nation readily arbitrate on questions touching its national independence or affecting its honor. Again, a nation may agree to arbitrate and regulate its agreement. Who is to enforce it? Or, having gone to arbitration and been worsted it may decline to be bound by the award. Who is to compel it? These considerations seem to me to justify two conclusions: The first is that arbitration will not cover the whole field of international controversy, and the second that unless and until the great powers of the world, in league, bind themselves to create a permanent member of the family of nations—we have still to face the more than possible disregard by powerful states of the obligations of good faith and of justice. The scheme of such a combination has been advocated, but the signs of its accomplishment are absent. We have, as yet, no league of nations of the amplification type.

Are we then to conclude that, force is the only power that rules the world? Must we then say that the sphere of arbitration is a narrow and contracted one? By no means. The sanctions which restrain the wrongdoer—the broker of public faith—the disturber of the peace of the world, are not weak, and, year by year, they wax stronger. They are the dread of war and the reprobation of mankind. Public opinion is a force which makes itself felt in every corner and cranny of the world, and is most powerful in the communities most civilized. In the public press and in the telegraph, it possesses agents by which its power is concentrated, and it speedily brought to bear where there is any public wrong to be exposed and reprobated. It year by year gathers strength as general enlightenment extends its empire, and a higher moral altitude is attained by mankind. It has no limits of war upon the seas or arms in the field, and yet great potentates tremble before it and humbly bow to its rule.

Again trade and travel are great pacificators. The more nations know of one another the more trade relations they establish between them, the more good will and mutual interest grow up, and, these are powerful agents working for peace.

But although I have indicated certain classes of questions on which sovereign powers may be unwilling to arbitrate, I am not to think that these are not the questions which most commonly lead to war. It is hardly too much to say that arbitration may fitly be applied in the case of by far the largest number of questions which lead to international differences. Broadly stated, wherever the right in dispute will be determined by the ascertainment of the true facts of the case; find where, the facts being ascertained, the right depends on the application of the proper principles of international law to the given facts—in such cases, the matter is one which ought to be arbitrated.

The question next arises what ought to be the constitution of the tribunal of arbitration? Is it to be a tribunal of honor, or is it to be a permanent international tribunal?

It may be enough to say, that at this stage, the question of the constitution of a permanent tribunal is not ripe for practical discussion, nor will it be until the majority of the great powers have given in their adhesion to the principle. But whatever may be said for vesting the authority in such a tribunal, the selection of arbitrators, from time to time, as occasion may arise, I doubt whether in any case a permanent tribunal, the members of which shall be a priori designated, is practicable or desirable. In the first place, the character of the best tribunal must largely depend upon the question to be arbitrated. But apart from this, I gravely doubt the wisdom of giving that character of permanence to the personnel of any such tribunal. The interest involved are commonly so enormous and the forces of national sympathy, pride and prejudice, are so searching, so great and so subtle, that I doubt whether a tribunal, the membership of which had a character of permanence, even if solely composed of men accustomed to exercise the judicial faculty, would long retain general confidence, and, I fear, it might gradually assume intolerable pretensions.

There is danger, too, to be guarded against from another quarter. So long a war remains the sole court wherein to try international quarrels, the risks of failure are so tremendous, and the mere rumor of war so paralyzes commercial and industrial life, that pretensions wholly unfounded will rarely be advanced by any nation, and the strenuous efforts of statesmen, whether immediately concerned or not, will be directed to prevent war. But if there be a standing court of nations, in which any power may resort, with little cost and no risk, the temptation may be strong to put forward pretentious and unfounded claims, in support of which there may readily be found, in most countries, a ready-made and unscrupulous army of ready patriots.

There is one influence which by the law of nations may be legitimately exercised by the powers in the interests of peace—I mean mediation.

The plenipotentiaries assembled at the congress of Paris, 1856, recorded the following admirable sentiments in their twenty-third protocol: "The plenipotentiaries do not hesitate to express, in the names of their governments, the wish that states between which any serious misunderstanding may arise should, before appealing to arms, have recourse as far as circumstances may allow to the good offices of a friendly power. The plenipotentiaries hope that the governments not represented at the congress will unite in the sentiment which has inspired the wish recorded in the present protocol."

In the treaty which they concluded they embodied, in a more limited application, the principle of mediation, more formal than that of good offices, though substantially similar to it. In case of a misunderstanding between the parties any of the signatory powers, the obligation undertaken by each having recourse to the use of force, to afford the other contracting parties the opportunity of preventing such an extremity by means of their mediation." (Art. 8.) Under this article Turkey, in 1877, appealed to the other powers to mediate between her and Russia. It is not, perhaps, to be wondered at, considering the circumstances, that the appeal did not succeed in preventing the Russo-Turkish war. But the powers assembled in the American conference at Berlin were not discouraged from repeating the praise worthy attempt, and in the final act of that conference the following provision (Article 12) appears:

"In case of a serious disagreement arising between the signatory powers on any subjects within the limits of the territory mentioned in article 1 and placed under the regime of commercial freedom, the powers mutually agree, before applying to arms, to have recourse to the mediation of one or more of the neutral powers."

It is to be noted that this provision contemplates not arbitration but mediation, which is a different thing. The mediator is not, at least in the first instance, vested, and does not seek to be invested, with authority to adjudicate upon the matter in difference. He is the friend of both parties. He seeks to bring them to a common understanding, and to avoid, as to each of them, anything which would injure their political dignity or their susceptibilities. If he cannot compose the quarrel, he may at least narrow its area and probably reduce its intensity. He is careful to avoid, as to each of them, anything which would injure their political dignity or their susceptibilities. If he cannot compose the quarrel, he may at least narrow its area and probably reduce its intensity. He is careful to avoid, as to each of them, anything which would injure their political dignity or their susceptibilities.

This is a power often used, perhaps not so often as it ought to be—and with good results.

It is obvious that it requires tact and judgment, as to mode, time and circumstance, and that the task can only be undertaken hopefully, only when the mediator possesses great moral influence, and, where he is beyond the suspicion of any motive except desire for peace and public good.

There is, perhaps, no class of question in which mediation may not, time and occasion being wisely chosen, be usefully employed, even in delicate questions of feeling national honor and sentiment.

A grocer's account book was instrumental in causing the arrest of William Blankenshet, charged with stealing sheep from H. Stetson, a farmer near Lorain. The book was accidentally dropped the night of the theft, and it furnished the police an excellent clew. Blankenshet was bound over to the grand jury.

E. C. Crozier, the traveling man who skipped a board bill at the Pickaway House in Circleville and was arrested at Columbus and brought back, had a hearing and was bound over to court in the sum of $500, which he could not furnish, and was sent to jail. His father is a prominent and wealthy merchant of Worthington.

CHAIRMAN JONES IN CHICAGO.

He Says He Likes the Effect of Bryan's Speech.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Senator J. K. Jones, of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic national committee, has arrived in Chicago from Washington. Accompanying him were his son, Kimborough Jones, of Washington; T. O. Towles, of the bimetallic league, and J. G. Johnson, of Peabody, Kan., member of the executive committee. The immediate result of Senator Jones' visit was the closing of a deal by which the national headquarters will be established at the Sherman House.

"I expect to remain here right along now until the campaign is over," said Senator Jones. "The literary end of the campaign will begin in Washington. The general outlook for Bryan's election is favorable. Men who were in doubt about his position before the Madison Square speech are pleased now. It dispipated the idea that our campaign was one of anarchy."

The senator said the gold Democratic movement was "too insignificant to discuss." It amounted practically to nothing in the south and made a small show everywhere else except in New York.

COLONEL BRECKINRIDGE SPOKE.

The Kentucky Gold Democrats Appoint Delegates to Indianapolis.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 21.—Kentucky Democrats who are not in sympathy with the Chicago platform have raised their standard and the Bourbon state will send delegates to Indianapolis. The convention which met at Music hall contained some 300 delegates who filled the central portion of the hall set apart for them, while on the stage were many of the men who have fought Democracy's battle in the state for a quarter of a century.

Two sessions were held. A temporary organization was effected, the selection of the various districts for committeemen, electors and delegates were admitted and an address was delivered by Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge that aroused a whirlwind of enthusiasm. The eloquent colonel's reappearance into public life was the occasion for one of his best efforts.

MR. BRYAN is a rampant free trader, and in this enterprising community free traders need not apply for consideration.

MR. BRYAN has degenerated into a circus. He never fails to draw the crowd, but they go away telling each other it is the same old thing.

We have already had one free soup house in East Liverpool because of Democratic free trade, and we don't want another because of Democratic free silver.

The Democratic managers might as well waste their time talking to the stars as attempt to convince the world that all their speakers are fighting for free silver without pay.

The Democratic administration has already cost this government $262,000,000, and to place the affairs of state in the hands of that crowd again would mean as much and probably more of a deficit.

A DANGEROUS MAN.

It is safe to believe that a child once burned will forever afterward dread the fire, and men are but developed children. The cause of the hard times is well known. The paid emissaries of wealthy silver kings can talk until their tongues, teeth and pallets are completely worn out, and yet be unable to convince the world that Grover Cleveland and his administration are not responsible. Candidate Bryan is a free trader. A few years ago he talked nothing but free trade. That is all he apparently knew, and he drummed it incessantly into the ears of his constituents. He told men for months the only thing they needed to make them all prosperous was free trade. Since then Mr. Bryan has experienced a change of subject, but not of sentiment. Now he is telling the country that happiness can only be found in free silver. According to his drawn out arguments it is the cure for all their ills, but at heart he is still a free trader. Down deep in his thoughts, hidden from view by silver, lies the same old love for what will high proved our ruin. He knows that the school of experience has done its work well, and he does not talk free trade nor in any but a casual manner refer to the tariff. But place him in power. Set him in the high seat he so longs to occupy. Then watch Mr. Bryan's attitude on the tariff. He will use all his influence to keep wool on the free list, cut the tariff on pottery to even a lower point, and will spare no force to place this country on a free trade basis. Mr. Bryan is a silver man, but Mr. Bryan is also a free trader, and therefore a dangerous man to place in public office.

FAVORS MEDIATION.

Chief Justice Russell Prefers It to Arbitration.

MADE AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS.

The Lord Chief Justice of England Spoke to the American Bar Association—Cheered For Fifteen Minutes by the Vast Audience—What He Said.

SARATOGA, Aug. 21.—The address to the American Bar association on "International Law" by Lord Russell, lord chief justice of England was an eloquent discourse and at its close the vast audience cheered the speaker for fully 15 minutes and then many rushed to the stage, congratulated him and shook him by the hand. Resolutions, coinciding with his views, were adopted.

Lord Russell in his address, briefly considered what is international law; its sources; the standard—the ethical standard—to which it ought to conform; the characteristics of its modern tendencies and development, and then added some needful words on the question.

tion, lately so much discussed, of international arbitration. He said:

It behooves all who are friends of peace and advocates of arbitration to recognize the difficulties of the question, to examine and meet these difficulties and to discriminate between the cases in which arbitration is, and in which it is not, practically possible.

Pursuing this line of thought, the shortcomings of international law reveal themselves to us and demonstrate the grave difficulties of the position.

The analogy between arbitration and matters in difference between individuals, and to matters in difference between nations, carries us but a short way.

In private litigation the agreement to refer is either enforceable as a rule of court, or, where this is not so, the award gives to the successful litigant a substantive cause of action. In either case there is behind the arbitrator the power of the judge to decree, and the power of the executive to compel compliance with, the best of the arbitrator. There exist elaborate rules of court and provisions of the legislature governing the practice of arbitrations. In fine, such arbitration is a mode of litigation by consent, governed by law, starting from familiar rules, and carrying the full sanction of judicial decision. International arbitration has none of these characteristics. It is a cardinal principle of the law of nations that each sovereign power, however politically weak, is internationally equal to any other political power, however politically strong. There are no rules of international law relating to arbitration, and of the law itself there is no authoritative exponent nor any recognized authority for its enforcement.

But there are differences to which, even as between individuals, arbitration is inapplicable—subjects which find their counterpart in the affairs of nations. Men do not arbitrate where character is at stake, nor will any self-respecting nation readily arbitrate on questions touching its national independence or affecting its honor. Again, a nation may agree to arbitrate and repudiate its agreement. Who is to coerce it? Or, having gone to arbitration and been worsted it may decline to be bound by the award. Who is to compel it? These considerations seem to me to justify two conclusions: The first is that arbitration will not cover the whole field of international controversy, and the second that unless and until the great powers of the world, in league, bind themselves to coerce a recalcitrant member of the family of nations—we have still to face the more than possible disregard by powerful states of the obligations of good faith and of justice. The scheme of such a combination has been advocated, but the signs of its accomplishment are absent. We have, as yet, no league of nations of the amphitryonic type.

Are we then to conclude that force is the only power that rules the world? Must we then say that the sphere of arbitration is a narrow and contracted one?

By no means. The sanctions which restrain the wrongdoer—the breaker of public faith—the disturber of the peace of the world, are not weak, and, year by year, they wax stronger. They are the dread of war and the reprobation of mankind. Public opinion is a force which makes itself felt in every corner and cranny of the world, and is most powerful in the communities most civilized.

In the public press and in the telegraph, it possesses agents by which its power is concentrated, and speedily brought to bear where there is any public wrong to be exposed and reprobated. It year by year gathers strength as general enlightenment extends its empire, and a higher moral altitude is attained by mankind. It has no ships of war upon the seas or armies in the field, and yet great potentates tremble before it and humbly bow to its rule.

Again trade and travel are great pacificators. The more nations know of one another the more trade relations are established between them, the more good will and mutual interest grow up; and, these are powerful agents working for peace.

But although I have indicated certain classes of questions on which sovereign powers may be unwilling to arbitrate, I am glad to think that these are not the questions which most commonly lead to war. It is hardly too much to say that arbitration may fitly be applied in the case of by far the largest number of questions which lead to international differences. Broadly stated, wherever the right in dispute will be determined by the ascertainment of the true facts of the case; find where the facts being ascertained, the right depends on the application of the proper principles of international law to the given facts—in such cases, the matter is one which ought to be arbitrated.

The question next arises what ought to be the constitution of the tribunal of arbitration? Is it to be a tribunal ad hoc, or is it to be a permanent international tribunal?

It may be enough to say, that at this stage, the question of the constitution of a permanent tribunal is not ripe for practical discussion, nor will it be until the majority of the great powers have given in their adhesion to the principle. But whatever may be said for vesting the authority in such powers to select the arbitrators, from time to time, as occasion may arise, I doubt whether in any case a permanent tribunal, the members of which shall be a priori designated, is practicable or desirable. In the first place the character of the best tribunal must largely depend upon the question to be arbitrated. But apart from this, I gravely doubt the wisdom of giving that character of permanence to the personnel of any such tribunal. The interest involved are commonly so enormous and the forces of national sympathy, pride and prejudice, are so searching, so great, and so subtle, that I doubt whether a tribunal, the membership of which had a character of permanence, even if solely composed of men accustomed to exercise the judicial faculty, would long retain general confidence or desirable. In the first place, as I have said, it might gradually assume intolerable pretensions.

There is danger, too, to be guarded against from another quarter. So long a war remains the sole court wherein to try international quarrels, the risk of far and so tremendous public, the mere rumor of war so paralyzes commercial and industrial life, that pretensions wholly unfounded will rarely be advanced by any nation, and the strenuous efforts of statesmen, who are immediately concerned or not, will be directed to prevent war. But if there be a standing court of nations, to which any power may resort, with little cost and no risk, the temptation may be strong to put forward pretensions and unfounded claims, in support of which there may readily be found, in most countries, (as we except even Great Britain and the United States) bodybodies who only too ready to air their spurious and inflammatory patriotism.

There is one influence which by the law of nations may be legitimately exercised by the powers in the interests of peace—namely, mediation. The plenipotentiaries assembled at the congress of Paris, 1856, recorded the following admirable sentiment in their twenty-third protocol: "The plenipotentiaries do not hesitate to express, in the names of their governments, the wish that states between which any serious misunderstanding may arise should, before appealing to arms, have recourse as far as circumstances may allow to the good offices of a friendly power. The plenipotentiaries hope that the governments not represented at the congress will unite in the sentiment which has inspired the wish recorded in the present protocol."

In the treaty which they concluded they embodied, but with a more limited application, the principle of mediation, more formal than that of good offices, though substantially similar to it. In case of a misunderstanding between the parties any of the signatory powers, the obligation undertaken "before having recourse to the use of force, to afford the other contracting parties the opportunity of preventing such an extremity by means of their mediation." (Art. 8.) Under this article Turkey, in 1877, appealed to the other powers to mediate between her and Russia. It is not, perhaps, to be wondered at, considering the circumstances, that the appeal did not succeed in preventing the Russo-Turkish war. But the powers assembled in the American conference at Berlin were not discouraged from repeating the worthy attempt, and in the final act of that conference the following provision (Article 12) appears:

"In case of a serious disagreement arising between the signatory powers on any subject within the limits of the territory mentioned in article 1 and placed under the regime of commercial freedom, the powers mutually agree, before appealing to arms, to have recourse to the mediation of one or more of the neutral powers."

It is to be noted that this provision contemplates not arbitration but mediation, which is a different thing. The mediator is not, at least, in the first instance, invested, and does not seem to be invested with authority to adjudicate upon the matter in difference. He is the friend of both parties. He seeks to bring them to a compromise. He avoids a tone of dictation to either. He is careful to avoid, as to each of them, anything which would impair their political dignity or their susceptibilities. If he cannot compose the quarrel, he may at least narrow its area and probably reduce it to more limited dimensions, the result of mutual concessions; and, having narrowed the issues, he may pave the way for a final settlement by a reference to arbitration or by some other method. This is a power often used, perhaps not so often as it ought to be—and with good results.

It is obvious that it requires tact and judgment, as to mode, time and circumstance, and that the task can only be undertaken hopefully, only with the mediator possesses great moral influence, and, where he is beyond the suspicion of any motive except desire for peace and public good.

There is, perhaps, no class of question in which mediation may not, time and occasion being wisely chosen, be usefully employed, even in delicate questions affecting national honor and sentiment.

CHAIRMAN JONES IN CHICAGO.

He Says He Likes the Effect of Bryan's Speech.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Senator J. K. Jones, of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic national committee, has arrived in Chicago from Washington. Accompanying him were his son, Kimborough Jones, of Washington; T. O. Towles, of the bimetallic league, and J. G. Johnson, of Peabody, Kan., member of the executive committee. The immediate result of Senator Jones' visit was the closing of a deal by which the national headquarters will be established at the Sherman House.

"I expect to remain here right along now until the campaign is over," said Senator Jones. The literary end of the campaign will begin Washington. The general outlook for Bryan's election is favorable. Men who were in doubt about his position here are pleased now. It dispelled the idea that our campaign was one of anarchy.

The senator said the gold Democratic movement was "too insignificant to discuss." It amounted practically to nothing in the south and made a small show everywhere else except in New York.

ALARMED OVER IDAHO.

Jones and Butler Don't Like the Situation.

SILVER REPUBLICANS IGNORED.

The Democrats and Populists Trying to Effect Fusion Without Them—If the Plan Succeeds, It Means the Defeat of Senator Dubois.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—At both the Democratic and Populist headquarters serious alarm is felt over the situation in Idaho, where the news dispatches indicate that the Democrats and Populists are trying to effect a fusion which will leave out the silver Republicans. The managers at both headquarters consider that this attempted combination at the expense of the silver Republicans is a violation of the spirit of the free silver campaign, which seeks to combine all the silver forces, and they fear its effect on the silver Republicans of other western states.

They believe the different forces should combine on equitable and just terms and effect a division such as was made in Minnesota and Washington. Moreover they consider that it would be especially ungrateful in Idaho because their refusal to recognize the silver Republicans involves the defeat of Senator Dubois. The latter is looked upon by both the Democratic and Populist managers as one of the great central figures in the bolt of free silver Republicans from the Republican party on the issue.

To his instrumentality, also, is most largely attributed the defeat of the tariff bill in the senate except with a free silver rider, and to "turn him down" they believe would send a chill through the leaders of the silver Republicans of the west. For this reason it is probable that both Chairman Jones and Chairman Butler will make every attempt to arrange some sort of an adjustment in Idaho that will give due recognition to the silver Republicans.

BRYAN WILL BE ENDORSED.

Everything Points to Such Action at New York Convention.

UPPER RED HOOK, N. Y., Aug. 21.—It is pretty apparent here that Candidate Bryan's plan to spend some time in New York state campaigning is not objectionable to the leaders in Democratic state politics, but on the contrary he has their co-operation in the movement. It is not certain that the state Democratic convention in Buffalo will endorse his candidacy from several events of the past two days, and Mr. Bryan himself smiled and said: "I am not bothering about New York Democrats. Everything will be all right."

Among the facts of significance are the visit of Mr. Elliott Danforth of the New York organization, the proposed visit of Mr. Bryan to Albany and the inviting of Mr. Bryan to meet a number of Democrats in Winneconne lodge in the Catskill, presided over by Chairman Hinkley of the Democratic state committee. With these significant facts is coupled the arrangement of a new western itinerary that includes several points in New York state. This itinerary includes, after the Erie speech on the 26th, these points: Speak in Buffalo the evening of the 27th, and in Medina, N. Y., on the afternoon of the 28th, spending the evening at Niagara Falls. Go to Hornellsville by way of Buffalo on the 29th, Saturday, and speak in Hornellsville in the afternoon. Then go to Jamestown in the evening and direct to Chautauque, where Sunday will be spent. On Monday, Aug. 31, Mr. Bryan will go direct to Cleveland, where he will speak in the evening. Tuesday he will go to Columbus, speaking there the evening of the 1st of September and at Toledo on the 2d. The evening of the 3d he will speak in South Bend, Ind., and Sept. 4 will be spent in Chicago at national headquarters.

Mr. Bryan does not expect to speak in Chicago. The morning of the 5th Mr. Bryan will leave for Nebraska over the Burlington road, making no stops. He says his speeches in all the places named will be very brief.

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CANVASS.

Chairman Hanna Proposes to Know Where the People Stand.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Republican managers will endeavor to find out every Republican who intends to vote for Bryan and every Democrat who intends to vote for McKinley. This immense task will be undertaken by the 20,000 organizations of the National League of Republican Clubs. The actual work will begin next week, although the officials at the national headquarters of the league have been preparing for it for several months.

It is expected that this canvass will cover every county in the country, and that when it is completed the Republican managers will know exactly where they stand on both the money and presidential candidates. As a starter 10,000 letters of introduction were mailed today. The reports are expected to begin arriving in about two weeks. A force of clerks will be put to work on these, and they will be tabulated as soon as they arrive. As the canvass progresses reports will be made to the national executive committee.

SPLIT OVER POLITICS.

Stevenson Withdraws From Don M Dickinson's Law Firm.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—A dissolution of the legal copartnership of Don M. Dickinson, the president's private secretary, Mr. H. T. Thurber and Elliott G. Stevenson, is announced to take place on Sept. 1.

Mr. Dickinson is said to have been much displeased when he returned from the east and found that Mr. Stevenson had to some extent compromised the firm by accepting the chairmanship of the state central committee and becoming responsible for the Bryan campaign in Michigan. Mr. Stevenson later resigned the chairmanship, but the friction which, however, never interrupted amicable relations in personal intercourse, continued and the result was the decision on Mr. Stevenson's part to withdraw from the firm.

Are You Out of Work?

If so, what caused you to be? Can you read? Can you write? Can you figure? Can you write a deed, a draft, a check, a note, and can you keep a set of books? If you cannot answer the above questions satisfactorily to yourself, why not prepare yourself for a position by taking a course at the Ohio Valley Business college, an institution that has put many young men and women on the road to success and prosperity? There is no young man or woman prepared to enter life without a good, practical business education, such as can be had at the Ohio Valley Business college. It won't cost you much. The school has ablest faculty, finest penman. The fall term commences Sept. 9, 1896. Day and evening school. Young men, why not spend your evenings in school, and get an education, instead of loafing around the streets? Make arrangements now, as the fall term will be large.

J. F. COOPER,
President.

And They Call It News.

A local paper is so badly in need of news matter that it places on the front page the announcement of a social at Spring Grove and the startling intelligence that the ladies would have charge of the dormitory next year, both of which appeared in the News Review several days ago. Verily that sheet is a "great" newspaper.

Parties who desire to take lunch baskets on the McKinley excursion next Monday can do so, as a baggage car will be a part of the train. There will be dancing free at Myers' lake in the afternoon, and an excellent orchestra will make the music.

Created Excitement.

The presence of two policemen in the East End yesterday afternoon, created a sort of mild consternation in the minds of the residents, who imagined the officers were there on some special errand. It developed, however, that Officers Whan and Earl were only out for a stroll and a street car ride.

Lost His Wages.

Andy Bracelin, an employee of the street car company, lost his week's wages, amounting to nearly $10, while at work yesterday. He thinks the money was dropped between the ties of the trestle east of the power house, and covered with dirt being thrown there to fill up the gap made by the flood.

TAPPED THE TILL.

A West End Boy Stole Money From His Friends.

For some time the proprietors of a West End grocery have been missing certain sums of money that have been stolen from the cash drawer at different periods. The thief at last was discovered. He is a colored lad, and was caught in the act of taking money from the till. The lad was threatened with arrest, and confessed to stealing $15. His parents agreed to make good the amount, and it was decided not to prosecute the lad.

UNDER THE HORSES.

Charles Risinger Fell on the Hill Road.

As Charles Risinger was riding his bicycle along the East End road Expressman J. R. Johnson was coming toward the city with a load of household goods. Risinger was not looking ahead, and did not discover the wagon until he was close to it. He then gave his wheel a quick turn and fell directly in front of the horses. Johnson was not looking for the accident, but quickly stopped his team, and gave Risinger a chance to escape. He was not hurt.

The case was not reported at city hall.

THE U. P. YOUTHS.

Their Convention Down to Hard Work at Omaha.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED.

The Report of the General Secretary Showed a Good Sized Increase in Membership.—Editor Reed of The United Presbyterian Made an Address.

OMAHA, Aug. 21.—The convention of the Young People's Christian union of the United Presbyterian church is down to hard work.

The general committee recommends the officers and the recommendations are generally adopted. The officers elected are: John G. Quay of Denver, president; Mrs. Mary Porter Kyle of Michigan, secretary, and W. J. Stewart of Parnassus, Pa., as treasurer.

The report of the general secretary, J. A. Duff, showed 633 societies, with a membership of 28,380, a gain of 2,393 over last year. These societies have contributed $28,299 for general purposes and $7,011 for missions—a total of $35,310, an increase of over $3,130 over last year. In the junior department there are 238 societies, with a membership of 8,902, an increase of 3,451 over the last report. In the absence of the treasurer his report was not read.

Rev. Willard White, D. D., of the Moody Bible school, Chicago, conducted what was known as the "silent hour," which was a most impressive service.

The appointment of a few minor committees occurred, and this was followed by an address on the "Young People's Bible" by Dr. W. J. Reed of Pittsburgh, editor of The United Presbyterian, followed by a conference on Junior work conducted by J. P. Tracy of Chicago.

Last night's session was given over to John G. Woolley, the great temperance orator. The theater was packed from pit to dome, and Creighton hall, seating 2,000 more was filled for an overflow, which was addressed by a number of able speakers.

Five cities want the next convention, namely Denver, Chicago, Indianapolis, Cleveland and Buffalo, with the chances in favor of the last named by reason of the location. The committee will hear from the various claimants tomorrow.

WRECKED BY CHILDREN.

The Cause of the Train Derailment Near Carrollton.

CANTON, O., Aug. 21.—A thorough investigation has been made into the cause of the derailing of engine No. 49 which was hauling a work train near Carrollton, the locomotive rolling down an embankment and killing Engineer Joseph Kirk and Fireman John Hardesty of this city, an account of which was given in these dispatches yesterday.

The investigation shows the accident to have been caused by children having placed three spikes on the outside rail of the curve where the derailment occurred. Twenty-six men in the caboose escaped death by falling several hundred feet down an embankment, because the caboose was caught in the branches of a big tree.

Will Call on Major McKinley.

CANTON, O., Aug. 21.—Besides the Baltimore delegation of 1,000 protective tariff workingmen about Sept. 15 numerous parties will call on Major McKinley. The Ohio Editorial association and New Castle (Pa.) workingmen are among those announced. Next Monday the farmers of Holmes county, O., and the potters of East Liverpool will visit the McKinley home.
